

JUDITH HEUMANN

“When other people see you as a third-class citizen, the first thing you need is a belief in yourself and the knowledge that you have rights. The next thing you need is a group of friends to fight back with.”

Judith Heumann (1947–2023), a community leader, activist, and “Mother of the Disability Rights Movement.”

JewishAmericanHeritage.org

Powered by:

WEITZMAN NATIONAL MUSEUM OF
AMERICAN JEWISH HISTORY
A Smithsonian Institution Affiliate

©2025

PROUDLY FUNDED BY
UJA Federation
NEW YORK

Image: TEDxMidAtlantic, Chris Suspect